The photograph on the front cover was taken by Alvin A. Westman, father of David Westman, who was a longtime Executive Director of ENA.

Mr. Westman says, "The photograph was taken on a foggy, frosty winter morning in the countryside near Rockford, Illinois. I like the contrasts of the dark fence, the foggy sky and the frost on the tree. I have found some of my best photographs as I have wandered around early in the mornings."

Mr. Westman is 81 years old and a retired office managing partner of the international CPA firm KPMG. Nature and landscape photography has always been his hobby, and he favors black and white images from the days when he did his own darkroom work. A number of his photographs have been published and sold. He and his wife, Marilyn, have traveled worldwide, and their travel experiences include such adventures as rafting down five rivers and backpacking up a mountain. They have three married sons and seven grandchildren.
